Datafarm answers the growing EU market demands with additional staff and a new location

-Datafarm accommodates a surge in growth by moving its EU headquarters to a larger, more central location.-

Slough, UK September 2, 2009—Datafarm Inc., a world leading provider of high performance electronic regulatory submission solutions for the life sciences industry, today announced that the company's EU headquarters has moved to larger, more central location to accommodate additional staff to answer the growing EU market demands for regulatory submissions software and services.

"In the current state of the global economy, Datafarm is thriving in both the EU and North America," says Shy Kumar, CEO and Founder of Datafarm. "Since 1997, we have used an organic approach to our growth strategies at Datafarm. This approach allows us to continue to make investments in all parts of the business. With the 2010 eCTD mandate approaching fast, the demand for our software and services has allowed us to expand our current EU headquarters in the UK. We also look forward to an upcoming office opening in Philadelphia USA," concluded Shy.

The new information for Datafarm's EU headquarters is:
